One man. One hour. One second-hand camcorder. Let's Make a Movie.

Co-writer/performer of The Edinburgh Fringe Best Newcomer Award Nominated show The Story Beast and star of Chortle Award Nominated Fringe favourites The Beta Males, Richard Soames returns to Edinburgh for his second solo hour with a movie making masterclass.

Richard has 60 minutes to make a movie and he needs your help. Having ~~missp~~ spent his childhood with his brother making uniquely exhilarating home movies, like their painstaking shot-for-shot remake of The Matrix, to their just painstaking Snakes in a Car, his younger brother's now all grown-wife-proper-job-and-mortgaged-up and Richard's on his own. But instead of six to eight weeks on a Studio lot, making an actual Blockbuster, he's booked an hour in a purple shipping container just off Bristo Square. Armed with a state of the art handycam from 2003, some questionable filmmaking techniques and genuine archive footage from his old home videos, Richard will do anything and everything it takes (mostly everything) to make a fully-formed movie in one hour.

That's right, he's going to make an actual movie. Every day.

Actor, writer, comedian, improviser (and moviemaker, did he mention that?), Richard has appeared on BBC1's Michael McIntyre's Big Show, Dave's Go8Bit DLC, Radio 4's Sketchorama and various online content for BBC3 and 4oD. As well as his collaborations as the multi-award winning Story Beast's arch-frenemy, he also plays Lord Fear in sell-out Edinburgh Fringe hit show Nightmare Live, teaches and performs improvisation with the award-winning Monkey Toast and is a guest cast member of Radio 4, Chortle Award Nominated smash hit Austentatious. The show is directed by Matthew Highton, long-time contributor and director for the Chortle Award Winning WeirDOS Collective as well as Chortle Award Nominated group Comedians Cinema Club.
